PROJECT Into the mix

Glossy tiles, smooth oak and veined stone create textural bliss in this lush bathroom. By Anna Delprat

The brief for this rural Victorian homestead at the heart of a nursery for thoroughbred horses was to mirror the surrounding countryside. The owner requested a space that reflected "the contradiction of brash Australian parrots to the hardness of working farmers". An unusual brief, but designer David Flack of Flack Studio is an expert at translating an abstract concept into a sophisticated reality. He created zones throughout the house inspired by diverse ideas: moody charcoal in the kitchen, to reference blackened bushfire-prone eucalypts; vivid yellow in the foyer that nods to the hue of canola fields. Similarly, the designer put a singular colour stamp on each bathroom: deep blue, punchy red, Barbie pink and, in this scheme, pale peach and dark green — "each unique, like Australian parrots, however existing together in perfect harmony". The smooth matte finish of the Agape Ottocento basin from Artedomos contrasts with the grainy Fashion granite stone from Peraway Marble and the glossy dark green FC Manual Verde Cobre handmade tiles from Urban Edge Ceramics. A soft brass Can wall light by Anna Charlesworth and sawn-oak veneer on the cabinetry add warmth, resulting in a serene, modern yet playful space. >> flackstudio.com.au
